> Rye Culture. From the Goldsboro Argus.

Believing there is a lack of general appreciation of the value of rye as a forage make it effective. crop, I desire to say something in its be-rye, from the fact that it requires only a this fall. as the fence."

Now let me here say, that is not the on any drained land; but the better the surplus. land the better the rye.

Select a piece of good land. Land in a high state of cultivation, and if possible manure heavily, then sow two bushels of rye per acre, plow in lightly and harrow level, and it will produce a crop of forage that will do stock more good than any other I know of.

First, because it is at a season that stock most relish it; having had no green feed for months it comes just right to make up variety.

Secondly, the yield is enormous. I should think at least five tons cured hay per acre if cut twice, as it well can be. The proper time to cut for hay, is just as

The Country Gentleman, which is considered authority on hay and grasses, estimates rye hay-cut as above stated, to be worth three-fourths the value of timothy hay-think of that! Fifty dollars per acre as a winter crop, and off time enough to plant in corn. This requires good land, manure and preparation. Mr T. T. Oliver of Pine Level, who is one of our best farmers, told the writer that he did not fully appreciate the value of rye till this year. .

Mr Oliver sowed some hill sides-thin land for him-in rye; cut once and when second growth was about two and onehalf feet high he turned it under and planted corn. He was astonished at the vield of corn. Said the corn was equal to low-land corn, and he proposes to not only plant it as a forage and pasture crop, but largely as a crop to plow under in Spring for manure. Persons having stiff heavy land, deficient in vegetable matter, might give rye a trial. It will work wonders. I have said nothing of rye as a pasture, but will add what the editor of the Southern Live Stock Journal says in that "The editor of this paper sowed four or can.) Three applications should be a perfive acres in rye last Fall, his first ex- fect cure even in aggravated cases. perience with this crop. He intended to ience the rye off to itself, but did not carry out his original purpose, and 50 or 60 head of cattle grazed upon it and trampled it over all Fall and Winter; and at times the rye would seem to be entirely exterminated. But it was not exterminated, and every warm spell it put forth its green blades and the stock would bite it off into the very earth. Late in the Spring the cattle were taken out of the field and the rye put up beautifully and we have harvested a fair crop. This after White Goods, Oriental Laces, Torchon Laces, having been severely pastured all Winter. What other crop will stand such treatment and not refuse to yield its increase? Our farmers need to make the farm self-sustaining and rye will help toward doing that. Plenty of forage means more stock-more stock means more manure-more manure gives better crops, and we all know what better crops mean. We want to get out of the old ruts;

diversify, and begin by sowing rye. Sow now. September is the best month in which to sow for purposes mentioned. October next. November will do if not already sown in October. Better sow in December than not to sow at all; but September and October are far the best months. If fodder or hay is scarce rye will make a good substitute. Try it.

Recapitulation: For lorage have good land rich, sow in September or October two bushels per acre. Plow in shallow. Aside from this sow as much land as possible with half bushel to one bushel seed, for pasturage, and to plow in next Spring for manure, reserving enough for seed. A. B. C.

Farming that Pays

Every farmer should aim to raise all the farm products needed for domestic use first. The independence of tarm life lies right here. He grows every supply for his table, so far as his soil and climate permits, under his own eye. He is dependent on no one for the necessities of lite, or even for the luxuries of his table. ity should be produced for his own use, tectors. let him live near or remote from the city. Then, let him increase the acreage of every variety that pays in the market to his ability to handle it without loss-his losses will often over-balance his profits. It is not wise for the grower to put himself at the mercy of others. If he does, he will often find their tender mercy cruel. They will let his perishable property go to waste, unless they can secure the lion's share of the profits.

Besides grain crops and stock growing as a branch of farming, every farm adapted to it should have growing on it an orenard of every variety of fruit de-manded by the market at paying prices. Do not run so much to one kind of fruit that you would suffer heavy embarrassment if it fails. All kinds of fruit seldom fail in one year .- New York Star.

Cherry Pectoral. For this affection, we consider this preparation the most efficacious of all the medicines which have come to our knowledge.—Mary Park-hurst, Preceptress, Home for Little Wanderers, Doncaster, Md. My children have been peculiarly subject to attacks of Croup, and I failed to find any effective remedy until I com-menced administering Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. This preparation relieves the difficulty of breathing and invariably cures the complaint.—David G. Starks, Chatham, Columbia Co., N. Y.

ter, with much satisfaction, Ayer's

I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for many years, and have found it especially valuable in Whooping Cough. This medicine allays all irritation, prevents inflammation from extending to the lungs, and quickly subdues any tendency to Lung Complaint.

— J. B. Wellington, Plainville, Mich. I find no medicine so effective, for I find no medicine so effective, for Croup and Whooping Cough, as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It was the means of saving the life of my little boy, only six months old, carrying him safely through the worst case of Whooping Cough I ever saw.—Jane Malone, Piney Flats, Tenn.
